THE COLLEGE "SWELL." BY GEO. W. CURTIS.

He comes to college; 'tis the destined path. " Armsand the man," he sings, and "Juno's wrath." "Cleanliness, godliness," cries he, and lingers, Reluctant with Greek roots to soil his fingers. Through the hard roads of learning travels he, By coach or pony, as the case may be. And with the faith of the old Hebrew nation, Escapes all agony by smooth translation, At exhibitions, when admiring girls Survey entranced his hyacinthine curls; When he is summoned, and before our view Walks in a tight as well as a vain shoe, . Oft have I marked those girls in musings deep-It might have been delight, it looked like sleep-Nor did they move until the sudden clan Rubbed from their blooming cheeks a little nap. Callow collegian! on your pigeon breast I mark the gorgious plumage of the vest; Admiring glances at the chain I steal. Where every jeweler has set his seal, And Snip and Crispin each had labored well To give the world assurance of a swell. Upon your head the little hat that sank. Like a black cloud upon "bald, awful Blanc," Vicarious kinds that saved your hands from dirt. The shapely studs you stable on your shirt, The veils of cashmere round your breast that lie, Your Alpine collar peaks that prick the sky; Reflective boots, too polished to laugh, That changed to leather, still they cover calf; Unsullied pants, each fold without a flock, Each separate leg holding its mate in check. These things I see; -- Nature and Art combine. Great is the fruit of their conjoint design; What classic impartiality it shows, Greece in your locks,-but Roman in your nose.

BURNING OF MOSCOW

BY J. T. HEADLEY.

At length Moscow, with its domes and towers and palaces, appeared in sight; and Napoleon, who had joined the advance, gazed long and thoughtfully on that goal of his wishes. Murat went forward and entered the gates with his splendid cavalry; but as he passed through the streets, he on purpose to swell the sea of fire, and exwas struck by the solitude that surrounded him. Nothing was heard but the heavy tramp of Lis squadrons as he passed along, for a deserted and abandoned city was the meager prize for which such unparalleled efforts had been made. As night drew its curtain over the splendid capital, Napoleon entered the gates, and immediately appointed Mortier governor. In his directions, he commanded him to abstain from all pillage. "For this," said he, you shall be answerable with your life. Defend Moscow against all, no matter whether friend or foe."

The bright moon rose over the mighty city, tipping with silver the domes of more than two hundred churches, and pouring a flood of light over a thousand palaces, and the dwellings of three hundred thousand but there was no sleep for Mortier's eyes. gardens and oriental magnificence that everywhere surrounded him, kept him wakeful, but the ominous foreboding that some dire calamity was hanging over the silent capital. When he entered it, scarcely a the buildings, he found parlors and beddonment of their homes betokened some Mortier, as governor of the city, immediately issued his orders, and was putting no boldness could awe, or courage overforth every exertion, when at daylight Napoleon hastened to him. Affecting to disbelieve the reports that the inhabitants were firing their own city, he put more rigid commands on Mortier to keep the soldiers from the work of destruction. The heard the incessant crash of falling houses, Marshal simply pointed to some iron-cover ed houses that had not yet been opened, from every crevice of which smoke was issuing like steam from the sides of a pent-up the thunder of artillery; and before this volcano. Murat, Eugene and Berthier rushed into his presence, and on their knees besought him to flee, but he still clung to that haughty palace, as if it were his empire.

ROBERT BURNS.

As long as there is an intelligent Scotch man or Saxon left in the world will the name of Burns be remembered. Who that has a heart which is not an icicle, and nothing more, can fail to admire his generous, noble character, and almost worship that sweet flowing style so peculiar to him-

Burns was one of nature's own republicans—a true believer in the sublime theory. of universal democracy. "Upper tendom" and "eminent respectability" could no more appreciate his powers than an owl would be able to comprehend the workings of the and if they are not instructed to become deity. His pulse kept even beat with the throbbings of the great heart of humanity. True, he had his faults-misfortunes rather: it is true that at times he imbibed freely of the intoxicating draught; but that sad misfortune was principally the result of his social disposition. It is too true that dissipation generally seeks for its victims the most noble and gifted. We have heard men, whose chief characteristic seemed to be nothing but cold-hearted selfishness, denounce Burns in unmeasured terms for bowing at the shrine of Bacchus. His habits of inebriety, together with poverty, proved what some would term his failure of success. But his life was not a failure. Aside from one single misfortune, his character and example loom up like so ne proud pyramid, scorning and pitying the lilliputs around it. He ever will be generously remembered by the working-man and the lover of universal democracy. Aristocracy can never be expected to become enthusiastic in his praise, for he hurled the power, beauty and wit of his pen at that deformed and sickening monster.

We have been called to these remarks by the following circular, which we have been requested to publish:--

Grand Caledonian Ball. At a meeting of Scotchmen, held in No 20 Factory Blocks, on Saturday the 30th of September, 1854, the following resolutions were agreed to:

1. While looking forward with pleasure to the last evening of the month of October, a night dear to the memory of every ed in Scottish poetry by our immortal Robert Burns; a night when the jocund song, friendly entertainment, and merry peals of laughter, ring through the length and dominion over boundless regions of territobreadth of our native land. That, seeing ry, or be compelled to throw aside her amthe number of Scotch people now residing in Holyoke and vicinity, we ought to combine in harmless amusement, to celebrate the nationality of Poland, and stifled the our native "Halloween."

2. That, in consideration of the foregoing resolution, we are of opinion that a "Grand Caledonian Ball" would be a suitable fete for that occasion, as it would thing in the shape of true democracy All give every one an opportunity of spending | friends of progress will rejoice over the rethe evening in pleasant and healthful en-

4. That the committee keep a correct account of the money collected and the Chicopee, who will not very soon forget amount expended in defraying expenses, and the surplus, if any, to be disposed of as the gentleman assembled may consider most convenient.

FELLOW COUNTRYMEN:—In adopting the foregoing resolutions, we are sanguine enough to expect that they will meet with your hearty approval. This, unlike many other fetes of the same description, has been got up through no selfish motive, but purely to commemorate the scenes of our native home, and at the same time create a friendly feeling and fellowship between us .--Where is the man whose heart does not always ought to prosper, and Mr. Collins beat responsive to the name of his father-

Is there a single individual to be found who is unwilling to unite in the celebration of that festive night, on which old and young have so often joined to render each other happy? Surely, though in a foreign land, we should not forget the friendly meetings and pleasant scenes of former days; let us cherish then the remembrance of that night,

"When friendly merry country folks Together do convene,
To bnrn their nuts and pu their stocks,
And haud their Halloween."

Believing this will meet with a cheerful response from all, we are Yours, the committee,

W. McMillam, President. J. HENDERSON, Secretary. J. McKinley, First Manager

As will be seen by the foregoing circular, we were mistaken in saying that the ball at Holyoke was to commemorate the birth-day of Robert Burns. Burns composed a splendid poem upon the "Halloween," and hence our remarks in connection with the circular.

Who will be Next Governor?

It is our opinion that the papers will be grabbed with avidity the day after election in this state. Such a political campaign as the present was never before heard of. Had there been a union, things would be entirely different; the people would be wide awake in their zeal to cast an immense vote for freedom; but men who think they embrace everything in the shape of. "respectability" said there should be no fusion. Very well, gentlemen, after that there were a FEW who inwardly resolved to "meet you at Phillipi." The news from Europe--which will be found on our first page-is of startling import. All eyes have for some time been fixed upon Sebastopol, and glorious news has at length arrived. Mr. Stoever, the former proprietor of this office, has dissolved his connection with the Germantown (Penn.) Telegraph, and removed, with his family, to St. Pauls, Minnesota. You may not exactly understand about this books. convention; in the first place, why is it held? and, in the second place, why, being held, it should convene so far away from the great center of Unitarian faith on this continent? I will

For a number of years, the Unitarian body have been in the habit of having an autumnal convention, for the discussion of topics suppossympathies.

Last year, the convention assembled in Balmore: and the members were entertained by Mr. Burnap. The members of the society of the you all in good health on Friday evening. Rev. John Cordner, located in Montreal, and standing along far from any society cherishing their brethren in the states to come over and help them; accordingly, the convention for this year was appointed to meet in that place. A most free and generous invitation was extended, and the houses and hearts of the people were opened to receive their friends. About three hundred clergymen and laymen assembled in Montreal, and the convention commenced its sittings on Tuesday eve., the 10th inst. Rev. Dr. Lothrop of Boston was chosen president, with several vice-presidents, and two secretaries-one of whom was Rev. Mr. Nute of Chic-

Suppose you withdraw all the Irish from your railroads and factories?—if from the railroads, do you think you will get the "material" to supply their places? Do you think you will get Americ ns to dig, through wet and cold and heat, from January to January, for the same wages, or double, or even any wages, as the Irish do? Just try the experiment. Let any contractor try it for a month-make his men work as hard as the Irish do, and at the month's end count his men willing to remain. And if you draw the Irish off from the mills, here and elsewhere, do you think your corporations can pay such fat dividends? Again I say, try the experiment, and see how far your railroads and factories will be successful.

"Did we not succeed pretty well as a nation before they (the Irish) came here in such hordes?" From 1840 to 1850, emigration from Ireland wonderfully increased. As a nation, America was successful long before those periods; but if you mean to say she was successful without Irish assistance, then you would assert what no intelligent American, or even any American, could assert, without proving himself ignorant of his country's history. I would not be willing to make such a charge against you, and thereno belief in the affirmative to the question you no belief in the affirmative to the question you ticle will be what it is represented.

The combinations of ingredients in these Pills, is the result of a long and extensive practice; they are mild in their operation, and certain of restoring nature into its proper channel. In every instance have the Pills proved successful. The Pills invariably open those obstructions to which females are liable, and bring nature into its proper channel, whereby health is restored, and the pale and deathly countenance changed to a healthy one. No female can enjoy good health unless she is regular; and whenever an obstruction takes place, whether from exposure, cold, or anyother cause, the general health begins immediately to decline, and the want of such a reined has been the cause of so many consumptions among young females. Headache, pain in the side, palpitation of the heart, loathing of food, and disturbed sleep do most always arise from the interruption of nature; and whenever that is the case, the Pills will invariably remedy al! these evils.

N. B.—These Pills should never be taken during pregnacy, as they would be sure to cause a miscarpregnacy, as they would be sure to cause a miscar-

Potatoes.

An agricultural friend, who returned week since from France, informs us that the farmers there have discovered that by leaving a portion of their potatoes, intended for seed, in the ground during the winter, digging them up, and replanting them in the spring, is a remedy against the continuance of the various diseases to which the potato has of late years been subjected. It will be recollected that this such persons, after a failure in their first purby Mr. Roberts. We have tried this experiment by leaving potatoas in the ground last year, mulching them slightly during winter with brush. When we dug them this spring, making a character for themselves. we found the potatoes perfect and very solid, and have planted them alongside of others, kept in the cellar during the winter. The growth of the crop gives fair evidence of the superiority of the seed left in the ground, and from present appearance, our experiment, backed by the result claimed by Roberts, and by the French farmers, is likely to sustain the recommendation of the Farmer's Club of the American Institute for the trial of this plan, and those of the agricultural press who attempted to laugh it down at the time of its publication, will be able to review their jokes with some profit to their readers.

The potato crop of this year will doubtless prove of excellent quality, but the quantity probably will not be so great, and certainly not greater than that of last year, while the demand from Europe will probably be greater than during any previous year. The arrival of foreigners at the port of New York alone has been, in the last 12 months, half a million, and will probably be much greater during the 12 months next ensning.

It is but fair to suppose that each of these will consume during the current year four bushels of potatoes, calling for an increased crop soon as possible. Let it also be a distinctive for that market alone, of two millions of bush- one. It is better to have a name for excelling els. ### A Hint to Farmers.

A late writer says that "the less land a farmer has the more corn he will raise." This is so. Our friend S- once owned a farm of 300 acres, while his capital was so small that he could only half manure it. The effect was that he could scarcely pay expenses. The money he expended on fences should have been expended on guano; while the wear and tear of plow and harness, was nearly equal to the par value of his potato crop. Some three this, he mortgaged his farm. The mortgage was foreclosed, and one half his farm struck off to the highest bidder. He thought he was ruined. No such thing. The manure, labor, and horse-flesh, which he formerly scattered over three hundred acres, were spread over one hundred acres, and what was the result? We will inform the reader. He now clears $2,000 | fice." a year, which clearing is effected with one third the labor, swearing and chuckleheads, which he formerly made use of to keep himself poor and ill-natured. We conclude with the same text we set out with-" the land a farmer owns, the more corn he will grow.

Make a Character for Yourself.

It is related of Girard, that when a young tradesman, having bought and paid for a bag of coffee, proceeded to wheel it home himself, the shrewd old merchant immediately offered to trust his new customer to as many more bags as the latter might desire. The trait of character revealed by the young man in being his own porter, had given the millionaire confidence in him at once. His reputation was made with Girard. He became a favored dealer with the enterprising merchant; throve rapidly, and in the end amassed a fortune.

No mere capital will do so much for a young man as character. Nor will always even capital and connection combined. In our own experience, we have known many beginners who have utterly failed, though backed by ample means, and assisted by the influence of a large circle of friends. In some cases indeed, consid erable experience, as well as industry and perseverance, have been added to these advantages, vet without securing success. We have known process was first recommended in this country suit, to try a second, and even a third yet with no better result, although still assisted by capital, by friends, and even by their own activity The secret was that they had missed, somehow

On the other hand, it is a common occurrence to see young men begin without a cent yet rapidly rise to fortune. They achieve this triumph by estbalishing a reputation for being competent business men. Few are so fortunate as to do this by a single characteristic act, like the purchaser who won Girard's good will by wheeling home the bag; for generally neither veteran merchants are as shrewd as the famous millionaire, nor young dealers so energetic as his customers. But a consistent life of sagacity, economy and industry, invariably establishes the right kind of reputation in the end. Confidence grows up, in influential quarters, towards the young beginner. Old merchants shake their heads approvingly, and say, "he is of the right stuff and will get along." Credit comes as it were unsought. Connection follows .will be materially increased. The emigration | The reputation of the new aspirant widens and deepens; his transactions begin to be anoted as authority; trade flows in on him from every quarter; and in a few years, he retires with a competence, or remains to become a millionaire. All this is the result of establishing at the out-

REMEDY. THIS PREPERATION, BY

E. P. EASTMAN, M. D. of Lynn, Mass.

AS been used in private practice for the last four years, with the greatest success. A radical cut has been effected in every instance where the directions have been strictly followed and persevered in. It is now given to the public with the full considence that it will do all that is claimed for it, and prove itself, upon fair triaf, an Infallible Sick Headache Remedy.

It is safe and pleasant to the taste, it brings immediate relief, and all who test its curative virtues, rejoice in the removal of pain, and marvel at its power in alleviating so general and often so fatal, a scourge. The following is from D. C. Baker, Esq., Mayor of Lynn, and President of the Howard Banking Company, Boston:

pany, Boston:

LYNN, Nov. 23, 1853.

DR. E. P. EASTMAN, DR. E. P. EASTMAN,

DEAR SIR:—A member of my family, a daughter 10 years of age was afflicted for several months with the sick headache, and we tried several remedies without success. When, however you administered to her your "Headache Powders," we found them to be very beneficial, and, in fact, restored her to health.
I should without hesitation, recommend them to those afflicted, and I beg to assure you that I fully appreciate their value.

Respectfully yours,
D. C. BAKER.

D. C. BAKER.

From Matthew Hais Smith, Esq., member of the Suffolk Bar.

Boston, Nov. 21, 1853.

Messes. Eastman & Co.—Gentlemen—I have been afflicted with the headache and pain in my head.—I have tried many remedies without benefit. Your "Sick Headache Remedy" was mentioned to me, and though I had but little faith in it, I gave it a trial. I found great relief from its use, and often immediate, when suffering from great pain. I have, since I tried it, been freer from headache than at any previous time for many years. It is now two months since I have had the headache, and, it is not too much to hope that the cure is permanent.

since I have had the headache, and, it is not too much to hope that the cure is permanent.

To many such sufferers I have recommended the specific, and in no case has it failed to relieve the sick headache, and that immediately.

Your medicine is simple, agreeable to take, interfering with none of the duties of life, and must, I think be universally adopted.
